Body Found In Blazing Mobile Home

An unidentified person perished inside a blazing house trailer late Friday night, according to Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputies who are maintaining tight-lipped silence about details of the fire.

The body, viewed at the scene of the 11:40 p.m. fire by Pickaway County Coroner Dr. Ray Carroll, was taken to the Hamilton County Morgue in Cincinnati.

Pickaway County Sheriff Dwight Radcliff hopes it can be identified by dental records.

The trailer, owned by Robert Timmons, is located on the Circleville-Commercial Point Road, a mile and a half south of the Route 316 intersection.

The Scioto Twp. Fire Department reported that the trailer was engulfed in flames when they arrived. Loss is estimated at $6,000 to the trailer and $3,000 to the contents.

Deputy Jim Deal did say that Timmons was working and not at home during the fire.

Also assisting in the investigation were Robert Greenawalt of the State Fire Marshall's office, Agent Marks of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation and Identification in London, Pickaway County Prosecuting Attorney Richard L. Gerhardt, and Auxiliary Deputies Norm McClelland and Bob Woodward.

Tuesday Hearing Set On Challenge To Ohio Election

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Defeated political parties alleging fraud in Ohio's presidential election Nov. 2 will get a hearing in U.S. District Court here next Tuesday.

Richard G. Reichel, Massillon attorney, and others are seeking an injunction to halt Ohio's participation on Wednesday in the U.S. Electoral College.

Reichel also is asking in his class action suit that the court order a new presidential election in Ohio.

He filed it Nov. 26 on behalf of the Republican, U.S. Labor and American parties.

Judge Joseph P. Kinneary scheduled the hearing Friday after meeting with Reichel and attorneys representing the Ohio Democratic Party, Secretary of State Ted W. Brown, and Ohio's 25 Democratic electors.

The Democratic electors are slated to cast their ballots for Jimmy Carter when the Ohio contingent meets Dec. 13 in the Ohio House chamber.

Reichel and other groups earlier this week asked the secretary of state to initiate his investigation of the alleged fraud. Their charges center primarily around a voter registration drive put on last summer and early fall by Democrats and major labor organizations which backed Carter.

Among other things, the plaintiffs maintain new voters were signed up from abandoned or non-existent ad-

Vance Administrator, Not Globe-Trotter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cyrus R. Vance, the establishment Wall Street lawyer named by President-elect Carter to be his secretary of state, is a man used to carrying out policy, not creating it.

The 59-year-old West Virginia native has deep and varied experience in foreign affairs, but always as a No. 2, a chief of staff. Given his previous statements, that is exactly what Carter wants.

The President-elect told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in a private meeting two weeks ago that "I intend to appoint a strong and competent secretary of state, but ... I will be the president and I will represent the country in foreign affairs."

Carter evidently intends to return to the practice followed by Presidents John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon in using the national security adviser as the main source of foreign policy advice, leaving the State Department to provide information and carry out directives.

In any event, Carter clearly wants Vance to be low-key. A major campaign issue raised by Carter was the dominance displayed by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger over American foreign policy. He strongly criticized Kissinger for being "a Lone Ranger" in conducting the nation's diplomacy.

Both Carter and Vance made it clear Friday when the President-elect announced the appointment in Plains, Ga., that Kissinger's whirling dervish

Carter: Economy Needs Help

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — With unemployment and wholesale prices rising, President-elect Carter says he expects the economy "will need help," possibly through an early 1977 tax cut, but says he doesn't want the power to impose new wage and price controls.

In a nationally broadcast news conference Friday from an agricultural experiment station near his home here, Carter showed obvious concern over new government economic and unemployment figures as well as price rises in the steel industry.

A few hours before the news conference, the Labor Department reported that unemployment rose last month to a new high for the year of 8.1 per cent from 7.9 per cent in October.

And another government report showed wholesale prices scoring their third sharp monthly increase in a row, rising six-tenths of 1 per cent in November.

"The likelihood is the economy will need help" next year, Carter said.

Carter said tax cuts and programs to create jobs are among options he is weighing. But he said he will wait until after the first of the year before deciding exactly what to do.

The President-elect, who also named his first Cabinet official during the news conference, moved to soothe any fears corporations may have of a Democratic administration by vowing not to seek standby power to impose wage and price controls.

Carter summoned reporters to the tiny but modern auditorium of the experiment station to announce his selection of Cyrus R. Vance, 59, to become secretary of state.

Vance served in the Johnson administration as secretary of the Army, deputy secretary of defense and as a wide-ranging diplomatic troubleshooter.

Jobless Rate To Hurt Demo Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The worsening economic situation will make it harder for President-elect Carter to reach his 1977 unemployment goal, one of his top economic aides says.

With the jobless rate now at 8.1 per cent, it will be "more difficult to achieve the unemployment goal of 6.5 per cent by the end of the next year," said Jerry Jasinski, who heads Carter's transition group for economic policy.

"I don't think we'll give up on that goal, but I think we'll have more work cut out for us," he said in a telephone interview.

Meanwhile, at a news conference, Carter said "the primary threat in this next four years is with continued unemployment"

He said he is almost certain he will recommend action to get the economy moving again soon after he takes office on Jan. 20.

"The likelihood is the economy will need help," Carter said. But he added he will wait until about Jan. 1 before deciding what kind of help he will recommend, and how much.

In the meantime, he said he and his staff will be developing "contingency plans" to have ready when he does decide.

Carter has said previously he would consider tax reductions, special job-creating programs or both. His economic advisers appear to favor tax cuts, but some key congressional Democrats are arguing for jobs programs.

At his news conference in Plains, Ga., on Friday, there were these other Carter statements on economic themes:

—He appointed Atlanta banker Thomas Bertram "Bert" Lance, 45, director of the Office of Management and Budget. Lance, a long-time Carter friend and associate, thus became the President-elect's first major economic appointee.

Seek End To Campesino Takeovers

CULIACAN, Mexico (AP) — Mexico's new president, Jose Lopez Portillo, has invited landowners from Sinaloa state to meet with him in Mexico City in an effort to mediate their dispute with landless peasants who have invaded their farms.

At the same time Sinaloa Gov. Alfonso G. Calderon said he will visit today with the militant peasants, who are demanding the land for themselves, and will ask them to end the takeover of private farms and allow work to return to normal.

Calderon told reporters at an airport news conference Friday he had been assured during a visit to Mexico City that the new administration of President Lopez Portillo "is going to resolve all the petitions for land presented by the campesinos (peasants)."

The squatters, whose number has been put at anything from 3,000 to 9,000, began moving onto about 100,000 acres of land Wednesday, the day Lopez Portillo was installed as president, succeeding Luis Echeverria.

Spokesmen for the landowners said the campesinos hijacked tractors, cut off irrigation and blocked roads to farm markets. They said the squatters were armed with shotguns, rifles and machetes.

Two farmers, brothers Jorge and Julio Andujo, were reported held for four hours before being released unharmed by a band of peasants.

Calderon said he would go into the fields and try to convince the campesino leaders "to desist from this activity and permit the farmers to work normally."

Also announced was Carter's plan to nominate Atlanta banker Thomas B. "Bert" Lance as director of the Office of Management and Budget.

Sources in the Carter camp indicated the President-elect has decided to name Atlanta lawyer Bob Lipshutz as a presidential counselor. Lipshutz was Carter's campaign treasurer.

Carter again expressed hope that recent steel price hikes will be reversed, voicing doubt that they were necessary "or will stick."

There had been speculation among industry observers that a new round of price increases could be upcoming because of corporate fears that Carter might seek powers that would let him freeze wages and prices.

But Carter said flatly on Friday that he will not ask for such authority, barring an emergency he pictured as remote. Standby authority, he conceded, could prompt price rises.

Carter disclosed that Lance, at his behest, had contacted the three largest steel producers and asked them not to adopt price hikes initiated by smaller competitors. But he said the companies replied that an increase was justified.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger joined senators of both parties in praising the impending nomination of Vance, whose confirmation by the Senate seems a foregone conclusion.

—He said he will not ask Congress for standby authority to impose wage and price controls, something he said he would do during his campaign.

—Carter expressed new disappointment in the rise in steel prices and said he still hopes steelmakers will forego the hike "to indicate to the rest of the world that we're going to do all we can now and in the next administration to hold down the inflationary spiral."

Carter revealed that he asked Lance to contact three big steel producers to ask them not to follow the lead of smaller steel companies in raising prices. But he said the companies replied that the increases were justified.

The President-elect held his news conference after the Labor Department announced that unemployment rose to 8.1 per cent of the labor force in November, the highest rate since the previous December, when it was 8.3 per cent. The jobless rate was 7.9 per cent in October.

The agency also said wholesale prices rose six-tenths of 1 per cent in November, the third largest monthly increase in a row. Wholesale prices in October rose six-tenths of 1 per cent after going up nine-tenths in September.

Gilmore Execution Delayed Again

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Convicted killer Gary Gilmore, who received an unwanted U.S. Supreme Court stay from his Monday morning execution, may be brought to trial on a second murder charge, his prosecutor says.

Gilmore's stay, the third in a month and requested by his ailing mother, came Friday when the Supreme Court voted 6-3 to delay the firing-squad execution that Gilmore has repeatedly said he wants.

It was not certain how long the Supreme Court's action would delay Gilmore's execution, though a deadline of Tuesday at 5 p.m. EST was set for the state to respond.

Within hours after the Supreme Court delayed the execution, Utah County Atty. Noall Wootton said he probably would begin proceedings next week to bring Gilmore to trial on a murder charge in the shooting death of Max David Jensen. The Brigham Young University law student was killed last July during a gas-station robbery.

The prosecutor has expressed concern over a Utah law which requires that executions take place between 30 and 60 days after sentencing and feared a court might release Gilmore, who was first sentenced Oct. 7.

Gilmore, who turned 36 today and has said he wants to die rather than spend the rest of his life behind bars, was charged with Jensen's death the same time he was charged in the shooting death of Bennie Bushnell, a Provo motel clerk.

Prior to the higher court's announcement on the petition by Bessie Gilmore, the Utah Supreme Court rejected her petition by a 4-1 vote.

Utah's top court and a federal appeals court on Friday also upheld state efforts to prevent reporters from interviewing Gilmore.

The decisions came in rejections of lower-court orders allowing reporters access to the death-row inmate.

Ronald Stanger, hired last week as Gilmore's attorney, visited Gilmore shortly after the court's decision and quoted him as saying:

"I wish my mother, the niggers and sons of bitches would butt out of my life. It's none of their business."

Mrs. Gilmore, who lives in Milwaukie, a suburb of Portland, Ore., entered the case through the Legal Defense Fund of the NAACP, an opponent of capital punishment. The organization fears Gilmore's execution could hasten the executions of the nation's 400 other death-row inmates, many of whom are black.

Utah Deputy Atty. Gen. Robert Hansen, who is Utah's attorney general-elect and a proponent of capital punishment, said the court might take up to 30 days to decide whether there should be a full review.

Hansen said a full review might tie up the case a year or two. If the court eventually strikes down Utah's death statute, Hansen said Gilmore would have to be sentenced to life in prison.

If Gilmore's execution is delayed past Friday, Robert Excell White of Texas, scheduled to die then, could become the first person executed in the United States since 1967. However, an appeal of White's case is pending before the U.S. Supreme Court.

style of personal diplomacy will be abandoned.

"I think the amount of travel that Mr. Vance would do would be fairly minimal," Carter said.

Vance speaks with experience as a ball carrier. His first major government role came in 1961 as general counsel for the Defense Department.

He was elevated to secretary of the Army a year later, followed in 1964 by a promotion to the Pentagon's No. 2 position, deputy secretary of defense.

He resigned in 1967, turning down the defense secretary's job, because of a bad back and to assume a position with a Wall Street law firm. But he continued to serve President Lyndon B. Johnson off-and-on, first as a special negotiator in Cyprus in 1967, then in a similar position in Korea.

In 1968 and 1969, he was the No. 2 American negotiator for the Vietnam peace talks in Paris.

He also acted as Johnson's personal representative during the Detroit race riot.

Carter had warm words for Vance in his statement, but he emphasized the technical and administrative aspects of the incoming secretary.

Vance is an old friend, Carter said, and "a level-headed, competent good manager." The incoming chief executive added that Vance is "a superb adviser, negotiator."

Carter and Vance also touched on a few specific foreign policy issues and the President-elect showed that he intended to keep Vance under his direction.

Some research results concerning TV toy commercials may confirm some of your suspicions. As your children watch commercials of toys, you might point out to them that some of the "fun" shown doesn't come with the toy, but the camera effects.

ACT, Action for Children's Television, sponsored a survey of TV commercials accompanying children's programs to analyze the differences in advertising content between those broadcast in April and November of 1975. The study was conducted by Dr. F. Earl Barcus of the Boston University School of Public Communications.

Among the findings was that toy commercials accounted for most of all children's advertising in the after-school hours during the holiday season, with an overall 17 per cent increase in network advertising directed to children. But it was the quality of the advertising that was most suspect.

Dr. Barcus found product descriptions minimal, with warnings or cautions about the use of the toy seldom given. About 15 per cent of the commercials in the holiday season used real and fictional personality ties. Multiple toys in one commercial was another misleading practice which may have lead the child to believe that his toy would be incomplete without the other items.

WHERE THERE'S SMOKE

More questions about fire detectors for Christmas presents are coming in. The following is more information from Judy Wessel, Extension Management Specialist.

Perhaps one of the home accidents most feared by homeowners today is the residential fire. Many homeowners, to help protect themselves from this type of accident, are installing residential smoke detectors. A new UL Standard for Safety for Smoke Detectors of this type was published in January of 1976, and requirements are effective July 5, 1977. This Standard for Safety for Single and Multiple Station Smoke Detectors, UL 217, covers electrically operated smoke detectors which are intended for installation in accordance with the Standard of the National Fire Protection Association, NFPA No. 74, Household Fire Warning Equipment.

Single station smoke detectors, as defined in this Standard for Safety, are self-contained fire alarm devices composed of a smoke chamber, alarm sounding appliance, and provision for connection to a power supply source. A supplementary heat detector may be included as part of the appliance, and the detector may be connected to an audible signaling appliance or accessory at a location which is remote from the detector itself. Multiple station units are single station detectors which may be either interconnected or connected to remote thermostats.

Once installed, consumers may become almost unaware that the smoke detector is there. Therefore, if the detector malfunctions in some way, the homeowner may be living with a false sense of security that the alarm will still sound, should there be a fire. For this reason, UL listed smoke detectors are tested to ascertain that failure of a critical component, including a battery, or any malfunction of the wiring connected to the unit, will result in an audible trouble signal from the detector. This trouble signal must be produced at least once every minute for a minimum of seven consecutive days.

During the UL tests, smoke detectors are exposed to such common household conditions as varying temperatures, humidity, dust and vibration. Unless a detector is visibly and clearly marked "Do Not Paint", the unit is tested after it has been painted over as might be expected in a normal use condition. The detector must then operate in a normal manner, and must comply with the requirements of a sensitivity test if the assembly, screens, openings, etc. are likely to be clogged or covered by painting.

Instructions for installation must be included with each detector, as well as other directions for use. For instance, users must be told about some of the most significant hazards against which the smoke detectors may not be effective, such as smoking in bed.

A PRODUCT WHICH WORKS BY HAND - OR UNMANNED

UL has recently listed, as the first of its kind, a 10 pound multipurpose fire extinguisher which may be used either automatically or manually. The extinguisher acts automatically when the temperature near the extinguisher reaches 150 degrees F, but a person can also operate it simply by pulling the safety pin and depressing the operating lever. The agent used in the extinguisher is an ammonium phosphate base dry chemical; it is pressurized with nitrogen to 195 pounds per square inch.

The extinguisher is intended for wall mounting, 5 feet about a floor, in a room no larger than 800 cubic feet. The room must be draft-free and completely closed. The extinguisher is not usually suitable for normally occupied rooms of a residence, unless facilities for quick exit are available. The room may range in temperature from minus 40 degrees F to plus 120 degrees F and the extinguisher must still operate within that temperature span.

When a fire is present, the accompanying abnormal rise in room temperature will cause a heat-responsive bellows element to operate, and when the room temperature reaches about 150 degrees, the bellows expands to a point that the valve stem is forced down into an open position. The dry chemical is then discharged through the valve and deflector assembly.

The extinguisher is suitable for use on fires involving ordinary combustibles, flammable liquids, or electrical equipment.

Buy A House Plant For Christmas

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

Buy Mom a house plant for Christmas. It's a living thing and something to remind her daily of your love and thoughtfulness.

It doesn't matter if Mom hasn't acquired the knack for growing house plants... many people stumble on to the rewarding pleasure of container gardening when they receive a gift plant wrapped in foil and tied with a ribbon.

The idea is... "don't panic," because growing plants inside the home has been going on for centuries. In the last few years, the idea has really caught on. There are plant shops, florists and nurseries on every corner.

Failure with foliage plants comes more often with careless watering practices, either too much or too little. With the exception of a few cacti, no plant can exist in dry, bricklike soil. Likewise, a constant saturation pleases only a few plants.

House plants do need humidity. Excessive dryness in the home is harmful not only to plants but also to furniture, and dryness makes the family uncomfortable. If you do not have a central heating and humidifier system, portable units can be used. It always helps to group plants and set the pots on trays of moist vermiculite, perlite or pebbles. Frequent misting helps humidity-loving plants to get moisture from the air.

Most plants will grow in a temperature range of 65 to 75 degrees.

One way to determine if a plant needs water applied to the root system is by touch. Insert finger about one-half inch into soil to feel if moist. Rub a bit of the surface layer of soil between your thumb and index finger. If dry powder results, watering is in order. If soil you touch has a pleasing dampness, chances are the plant will not

Some research results concerning TV toy commercials may confirm some of your suspicions. As your children watch commercials of toys, you might point out to them that some of the "fun" shown doesn't come with the toy, but the camera effects.

ACT, Action for Children's Television, sponsored a survey of TV commercials accompanying children's programs to analyze the differences in advertising content between those broadcast in April and November of 1975. The study was conducted by Dr. F. Earl Barcus of the Boston University School of Public Communications.

Among the findings was that toy commercials accounted for most of all children's advertising in the after-school hours during the holiday season, with an overall 17 per cent increase in network advertising directed to children. But it was the quality of the advertising that was most suspect.

Dr. Barcus found product descriptions minimal, with warnings or cautions about the use of the toy seldom given. About 15 per cent of the commercials in the holiday season used real and fictional personality tie-ins. There was a frequent use of visual distortion or special effects which would lead the child to expect something other than that of which the product was capable. Multiple toys in one commercial was another misleading practice which may have lead the child to believe that his toy would be incomplete without the other items.

Scientists Bug Insect Talk

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

Ohio scientists have discovered a direct communications link between two completely different species of insects. Dr. L. R. Nault, a research entomologist at the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center, Wooster, reported the findings at the annual meeting of the Entomological Society of America.

Nault said that ants can intercept chemical "messages" from certain species of aphids and respond by scurrying to defend the aphids from attack by predator insects. The Ohio scientist explained that aphids (small, soft-bodied insects which feed on plants) are especially vulnerable to attack by predators. They have built-in natural defense mechanism which Nault and several of his co-workers identified several years ago. When aphids are under attack, they release tiny droplets of an "alarm pheromone," a chemical sensed by other aphids in the area causing them to take immediate escape action.

Certain species of ants and aphids have established a unique relationship that appears to be mutually beneficial. It has long been recognized that ants "tend" colonies of some aphid species, feeding on an aphid secretion which is known as "honey-dew."

Recent studies by Nault, OARDC post-doctoral associate M.E. Montgomery, and New York entomologist

W. S. Bowers, showed that the ants tending aphids are prime defenders of the aphids.

Nault said laboratory studies confirmed that the ants sense alarm pheromone secreted by the aphids and respond immediately by attacking and driving off predator insects. Unlike aphid species which are not attended by ants, anti-associated species respond weakly to alarm pheromone and become almost totally dependent upon ants for protection. The Ohio scientist interpreted the studies as a clear demonstration that aphids chemically communicate with ants and that the communication may be a key factor in maintaining the mutually beneficial association between the two species.

The team of entomologists has also deciphered the chemical makeup of the alarm pheromone and duplicated it synthetically. They feel the synthetic pheromone may in the future play a role in protecting valuable plants against aphids with less reliance on chemical pesticides.

The Ohio study was among a number presented during the scientific meetings held in Honolulu. Scientists from throughout the U.S. and many other nations have been attending the conference (Nov. 28-Dec. 2). The Entomological Society of America is a national organization of scientists and allied workers involved in the study of the biology and control of insects.

People Helping People

Teenagers, and Ohio 4-H'ers are no exception, handle a surprisingly large amount of money during the year. Clothing, recreation, school expenses, gifts are some of the major uses these young citizens have for their money.

Here are six steps or guides to better buying or wise use of money.

1. Managing your dollars with sense means considering your present sources of income and how you plan to use it. Most of your expenses fall into these groups: immediate, future, fun, special, and unplanned.

2. Deciding where to shop means a choice of stores, catalogues, vending machines, door-to-door salespersons and which source is the best buy.

3. Knowing how and when to buy is another step. Comparing different brands, reading labels, and asking salespeople for information provide a factual approach to your purchases.

4. Figuring the cost means considering how to pay, whether by check, charge account, or time payments. The cost of time, upkeep, and service is another factor to check.

5. Knowing where to find reliable information involves being familiar with sources of consumer information including pamphlets, magazines, radio, television, stores, manufacturers, and books.

6. Saving the labels makes it possible to have the greatest possible service and satisfaction because you have the information to give the proper care and maintenance.

Can you prevent apples and bananas from turning brown after they are peeled? The answer is yes. If you sprinkle the fruit with lemon juice, pineapple juice or a salt solution it will not turn dark.

4-H members doing the "Trick for Treats" project experiment with the fruit to see for themselves how darkening is prevented. This is only one of the food experiments members can do to learn about food preparation.

The "Tricks for Treats" project is for beginning 4-H members. They learn the "4-4-3-2 Magic Formula" for good nutrition and try to practice good eating habits as they choose foods from basic four food groups.

"Tricks for Treats" contains helpful hints for measuring ingredients, nutritious recipes, food buying tips, and information about serving, setting the table and cleaning up after eating. 4-H'ers learn by doing by making such foods as apple crisp, fruit kabobs, drop biscuits, cinnamon toast, cocoa, and plain and fancy puddings.

Last year over 2,200 boys and girls did the "Tricks for Treats" project in 4-H. There are eighteen other foods projects from which to choose. Contact the Cooperative Extension Service office in Pickaway County for information or talk with a 4-H advisor or member in your community. The 4-H program is conducted by The Ohio State University and is open to all youth between age 9 and 19.

Producers Take Closer Look At Tall Fescue

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

Tall fescue, a controversial forage grass in recent years, is gaining greater use by livestock producers — despite its generally low palatability and intake. Producers are including the grass in their forage programs because of its wide adaptation to soil conditions, productivity, persistence, response to fertilization, and ease of management.

Reporting during a symposium on tall fescue at scientific meetings here this week, R. W. Van Keuren, an agronomist at the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center, said tall fescue has gained greater acceptance for breeding and lactating beef cows than for dairy cattle and sheep. This is primarily because beef cows have lower critical nutrient requirements than do dairy cattle or sheep and are concentrated in areas (central and southern U.S.) where tall fescue grows well.

Van Keuren said tall fescue used for summer grazing of beef cow-calf herds should be seeded with a legume (such as ladino clover) for higher calf daily gains, weaning weights, grades, and better cow conception rates. Creep feeding (such as supplemental cracked shelled corn and crimped oats) partially compensates for any lack of legumes in pure stands of tall fescue, but does not appear necessary in good quality grass-legume pastures.

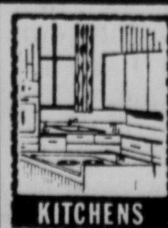

Studies have shown that tall fescue is outstanding in wintering programs for beef cows in northern and central regions of the country. The grass is productive and very acceptable to the livestock during this period and withstands treading damage during winter feeding. In northern states such as Ohio and Indiana, setting aside a field for wintering is probably the best practice, harvesting several hay crops and field-storing for feeding to supplement the fall and winter regrowth. With good quality hay, particularly if a legume is included, Van Keuren said grain and protein supplements normally would not be needed, except for young cows. Tall fescue can also fit well into year-around forage programs for beef cows — and probably best when alternated with other grass species.

Tall fescue is used to only a very limited extent for sheep as summer pasture, with somewhat more acceptance for winter grazing or winter feed programs. Van Keuren said research indicates that with proper management and when used in combination with legumes, tall fescue is a better grass for sheep for winter pasture than generally recognized.

Dairymen considering using tall fescue for lactating cows should consider the limitations of the grass as a dairy forage, as well as its desirable characteristics. Van Keuren believes its major limitation is lower intake resulting in reduced milk production. He concluded that pasture management is critically important to maintaining the forage in a nutritional and palatable stage for lactating cows, and to maintain a legume in the stand.

This report was one of many presented this week (Nov. 28-Dec. 2) at the joint meetings of the American Society of Agronomy, Crop Science Society of America, and the Soil Science Society of America in Houston. The three groups are scientific, educational organizations with more than 8,500 members throughout the United States and more than 90 foreign countries.

Tentative Supports For Farmers Bared

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has tentatively set target price supports for major crops in 1977, but officials say the final determination will not be made for another couple of months.

Officials said Wednesday that the 1977 target price of wheat has been tentatively computed at $2.53 a bushel, up from $2.29 in 1976; corn $1.74 a bushel against 1.57 this year, and cotton 49 cents a pound, compared with the current rate of about 43 cents.

The target levels represent prices used by USDA in computing whether farmers will get direct government payments. If cash market prices fall below the target levels for a specific period during the crop year, then payments are authorized to make up the difference.

Although authorized in the 1973 farm act, so-called deficiency payments have not been made because market prices have exceeded the targets. However, recent price declines have raised prospects that payment may be made for some 1977 crops.

In November, for example, the average farm price of wheat was $2.46 a bushel, slightly below the preliminary target for next year.

Corn, at $2.02 a bushel, exceeded the 1977 target rate, but many farmers and officials believe another huge harvest next year will cause prices to drop further. Cotton, because of a tight supply situation, was 63.5 cents a pound in November, well above the target.

Target price adjustments are prescribed by a formula in the law, based partly on costs of production. Final 1977 target rates probably will be announced in February, officials said.

The price support loan rate is another step in the government's crop programs and are separate from the target price concept used to compute direct subsidies to farmers.

If a farmer chooses, he can obtain a loan from USDA, using his crop as collateral. When market prices are higher than loan rates, the normal thing to do is repay the loan and sell the commodities for cash.

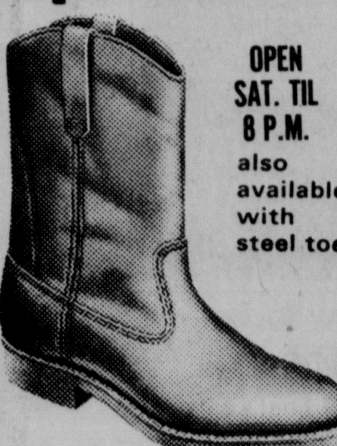

But if market prices are below the loan rate, farmers generally do not repay the loan. In such cases the government assumes ownership of the commodities and cancels the farmer's obligation.

The secretary of agriculture has administrative leeway in setting the loan rates, which he does not have with regard to targets. For 1977 the wheat loan rate is $2.25 a bushel; corn $1.50 a bushel, and cotton about 42.6 cents a pound.

The 1977 rates will be subject to review by the new administration and Congress take up new legislation to replace the over-all 1973 farm act, which will expire with next year's crops.

The 1975 Ohio Farm Income report, prepared by the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center, finds Darke County leading the state in the sale of corn and soybeans. Other leading counties were: Wayne, dairy products; Clinton, hogs; Clark, cattle and calves; Wood, wheat; Mercer, poultry and eggs; Lake, greenhouse and nursery; and Sandusky, vegetables.

Scientists Bug Insect Talk

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

Ohio scientists have discovered a direct communications link between two completely different species of insects. Dr. L. R. Nault, a research entomologist at the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center, Wooster, reported the findings at the annual meeting of the Entomological Society of America.

Nault said that ants can intercept chemical "messages" from certain species of aphids and respond by currying to defend the aphids from attack by predator insects. The Ohio scientist explained that aphids (small, soft-bodied insects which feed on plants) are especially vulnerable to attack by predators. They have built-in natural defense mechanism which Nault and several of his co-workers identified several years ago. When aphids are under attack, they release tiny droplets of an "alarm pheromone," a chemical sensed by other aphids in the area causing them to take immediate escape action.

Certain species of ants and aphids have established a unique relationship that appears to be mutually beneficial. It has long been recognized that ants "tend" colonies of some aphid species, feeding on an aphid secretion which is known as "honey-dew."

Recent studies by Nault, OARDC post-doctoral associate M.E. Montgomery, and New York entomologist

W. S. Bowers, showed that the ants tending aphids are prime defenders of the aphids.

Nault said laboratory studies confirmed that the ants sense alarm pheromone secreted by the aphids and respond immediately by attacking and driving off predator insects. Unlike aphid species which are not attended by ants, anti-associated species respond weakly to alarm pheromone and become almost totally dependent upon ants for protection. The Ohio scientist interpreted the studies as a clear demonstration that aphids chemically communicate with ants and that the communication may be a key factor in maintaining the mutually beneficial association between the two species.

The team of entomologists has also deciphered the chemical makeup of the alarm pheromone and duplicated it synthetically. They feel the synthetic pheromone may in the future play a role in protecting valuable plants against aphids with less reliance on chemical pesticides.

The Ohio study was among a number presented during the scientific meetings held in Honolulu. Scientists from throughout the U.S. and many other nations have been attending the conference (Nov. 28-Dec. 2). The Entomological Society of America is a national organization of scientists and allied workers involved in the study of the biology and control of insects.

Tentative Supports For Farmers Bared

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has tentatively set target price supports for major crops in 1977, but officials say the final determination will not be made for another couple of months.

Officials said Wednesday that the 1977 target price of wheat has been tentatively computed at $2.53 a bushel, up from $2.29 in 1976; corn $1.74 a bushel against 1.57 this year, and cotton 49 cents a pound, compared with the current rate of about 43 cents.

The target levels represent prices used by USDA in computing whether farmers will get direct government payments. If cash market prices fall below the target levels for a specific period during the crop year, then payments are authorized to make up the difference.

Although authorized in the 1973 farm act, so-called deficiency payments have not been made because market prices have exceeded the targets. However, recent price declines have raised prospects that payment may be made for some 1977 crops.

In November, for example, the average farm price of wheat was $2.46 a bushel, slightly below the preliminary target for next year.

Corn, at $2.02 a bushel, exceeded the 1977 target rate, but many farmers and officials believe another huge harvest

Teenagers, and Ohio 4-H'ers are no exception, handle a surprisingly large amount of money during the year. Clothing, recreation, school expenses, gifts are some of the major uses these young citizens have for their money.

Here are six steps or guides to better buying or wise use of money.

1. Managing your dollars with sense means considering your present sources of income and how you plan to use it. Most of your expenses fall into these groups: immediate, future, fun, special, and unplanned.

2. Deciding where to shop means a choice of stores, catalogues, vending machines, door-to-door salespersons and which source is the best buy.

3. Knowing how and when to buy is another step. Comparing different brands, reading labels, and asking salespeople for information provide a factual approach to your purchases.

4. Figuring the cost means considering how to pay, whether by check, charge account, or time payments. The cost of time, upkeep, and service is another factor to check.

5. Knowing where to find reliable information involves being familiar with sources of consumer information including pamphlets, magazines, radio, television, stores, manufacturers, and books.

6. Saving the labels makes it possible to have the greatest possible service and satisfaction because you have the information to give the proper care and maintenance.

Can you prevent apples and bananas from turning brown after they are peeled? The answer is yes. If you sprinkle the fruit with lemon juice, pineapple juice or a salt solution it will not turn dark.

4-H members doing the "Trick for Treats" project experiment with the fruit to see for themselves how darkening is prevented. This is only one of the food experiments members can do to learn about food preparation.

The "Tricks for Treats" project is for beginning 4-H members. They learn the "4-4-3 Magic Formula" for good nutrition and try to practice good eating habits as they choose foods from basic four food groups.

"Tricks for Treats" contains helpful hints for measuring ingredients, nutritious recipes, food buying tips, and information about serving, setting the table and cleaning up after eating. 4-H'ers learn by doing by making such foods as apple crisp, fruit kabobs, drop biscuits, cinnamon toast, cocoa, and plain and fancy puddings.

Last year over 2,200 boys and girls did the "Tricks for Treats" project in 4-H. There are eighteen other foods projects from which to choose. Contact the Cooperative Extension Service office in Pickaway County for information or talk with a 4-H advisor or member in your community. The 4-H program is conducted by The Ohio State University and is open to all youth between age 9 and 19.

Producers Take Closer Look At Tall Fescue

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

Tall fescue, a controversial forage grass in recent years, is gaining greater use by livestock producers — despite its generally low palatability and intake. Producers are including the grass in their forage programs because of its wide adaptation to soil conditions, productivity, persistence, response to fertilization, and ease of management.

Reporting during a symposium on tall fescue at scientific meetings here this week, R. W. Van Keuren, an agronomist at the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center, said tall fescue has gained greater acceptance for breeding and lactating beef cows than for dairy cattle and sheep. This is primarily because beef cows have lower critical nutrient requirements than do dairy cattle or sheep and are concentrated in areas (central and southern U.S.) where tall fescue grows well.

Van Keuren said tall fescue used for summer grazing of beef cow-calf herds should be seeded with a legume (such as ladino clover) for higher calf daily gains, weaning weights, grades, and better cow conception rates. Creep feeding (such as supplemental cracked shelled corn and crimped oats) partially compensates for any lack of legumes in pure stands of tall fescue, but does not appear necessary in good quality grass-legume pastures.

Studies have shown that tall fescue is outstanding in wintering programs for beef cows in northern and central regions of the country. The grass is productive and very acceptable to the livestock during this period and withstands treading damage during winter feeding. In northern states such as Ohio and Indiana, setting aside a field for wintering is probably the best practice, harvesting several hay crops and field-storing for feeding to supplement the fall and winter regrowth. With good quality hay, particularly if a legume is included, Van Keuren said grain and protein supplements normally would not be needed, except for young cows. Tall fescue can also fit well into year-around forage programs for beef cows — and probably best when alternated with other grass species.

Tall fescue is used to only a very limited extent for sheep as summer pasture, with somewhat more acceptance for winter grazing or winter feed programs. Van Keuren said research indicates that with proper management and when used in combination with legumes, tall fescue is a better grass for sheep for winter pasture than generally recognized.

Dairymen considering using tall

fescue for lactating cows should consider the limitations of the grass as a dairy forage, as well as its desirable characteristics. Van Keuren believes its major limitation is lower intake resulting in reduced milk production. He concluded that pasture management is critically important to maintaining the forage in a nutritional and palatable stage for lactating cows, and to maintain a legume in the stand.

This report was one of many presented this week (Nov. 28-Dec. 2) at the joint meetings of the American Society of Agronomy, Crop Science Society of America, and the Soil Science Society of America in Houston. The three groups are scientific, educational organizations with more than 8,500 members throughout the United States and more than 90 foreign countries.

World Debt Rising

Heavy debt and sluggish economies have brought a number of nations to the brink of harsh economic decisions. In Europe, Britain, Italy and France are struggling to keep their financial heads above water and may find it necessary to abandon extensive social programs to do so.

In many parts of the third world, the situation is equally grim, but without the cushion of industrialization to fall back on. More than half the government debt of the third world is owed by four countries—India, Egypt, Bangladesh and Pakistan. Egypt owes one and a half times its gross national product, an example of how serious the debt problem has become for some countries.

Over the last five years more reserves have been added to the world's banking systems than in any other period, the cause many believe for world inflation. The truism that a nation can no more live perpetually above its level of productivity than a family can is becoming clearer all the time.

Cards For Christmas

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

NEW YORK — On the wall of Martin Dash's office in lower Manhattan, there is a framed picture of the interior of an El-Al Israeli jet.

A pregnant woman in flowing robes is waiting patiently, while a bearded shepherd holds a gun to the pilot's head.

A caption beneath reads: "Jerusalem — or else!"

This picture is heavy stuff. Funny, yes. Sacrilegious, quite.

"Needless to say, we rejected it," smiled Dash, who heads one of the country's most prestigious greeting card concerns, the American Artists Group.

"People are extremely careful at Christmas time about the kind of cards they send out. Some people like humor — but, more than at any season, they are afraid of treading on good taste. That's why the makers of Studio Cards don't do well at Christmas. Folks who buy double-entendre cards for all other occasions of the year suddenly become conservative in December. Sex and violence and double meanings are out for Christmas.

"In fact, some quite amusing and innocent cards are rejected because the style of the artwork suggests that maybe there's a hidden meaning there that's offensive — and they're afraid they've missed it."

This doesn't mean that we won't be getting plenty of funny cards this season. Two hot items in the current line are Whistler's Mother (with the face of a deer, and knitting a Christmas stocking with hooves instead of hands), and in the Bicentennial spirit, there's Washington crossing the Delaware, with reindeer at the oars.

"But the card that still sells best, and perhaps always will," says Dash, "is the well-painted quiet country scene. To urban dwellers, the idea of Christmas in the country is a Heaven they hope to go to some day."

Will Americans send out as many cards this Christmas as they have in the past?

"That's an iffy question. People are beginning to realize that the high postage rates make card-sending in large numbers a definite luxury. Even though they postponed the stamp price increase till after Christmas in 1975, people limited their lists.

"This year, we're noticing an increase in Christmas orders, but that's probably because American Artists is a top of the market line — our customers are people who basically can afford to send cards, regardless of price. And we may be benefitting from some of the other greeting card makers going out of business. Hallmark, one of the biggest, for example, has gone out of the personalized Christmas card market after last year. They found it didn't pay."

Is there a trend away from the name-imprinted card? I've heard some people say that it's "cold" and "impersonal" to send cards with names factory-printed after the message.

"That's a strange phenomenon, in my opinion," Dash says. "Many Americans seem to feel that way. Instead of having their names printed on the card, they have their names and addresses imprinted on the envelopes. A sort of mystique has been built up which says it is warmer to scrawl your name at the bottom of the card. I don't object to it — I just think it's strange."

"When you have your name printed on the card, you have the strength to write in a little personal message. Now, all you can do, unless you're going to suffer writer's cramp, is write in your name."

"It becomes a simple matter of how you want to allocate your time and energy. Personally, I'd rather have my name printed, and write in a personal 'love' or 'We're thinking of you.'"

Dash's company was formed 40 years ago with the express purpose of offering professional artists an opportunity to make a decent living.

"We conceived the idea that greeting cards should be fine art — and that fine artists need a break. Artists are known to starve, you know. So the American Artists Group was founded during the depression for the two-fold purpose of

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Huntington's disease afflicts a member of my family. It is part of my professional, as well as my personal, concern. I am actively engaged with the Commission for the Control of Huntington's Disease and Its Consequences.

It is urgent that this long-neglected disease be brought to the attention of the public. Will you help?

Dr. N. S. W., Md.

Dear Dr. W.:

When Congress created the Commission for the Control of Huntington's Disease and Its Consequences a vehicle of hope was established.

Suddenly, a flimsy prayer was converted into forceful reality. It is hoped that medical education of the laity will now give a sound structure to this problem, to the early recognition of the disease and to its prevention and cure.

Huntington's disease, previously known as "Huntington's Chorea," was first recognized and described by an American doctor, George Huntington, more than a hundred years ago.

He has been honored for his brilliant observations of this disease which bears his name. Now, it is hoped he will be even more greatly honored when scientists, working in coordination with the Commission, find a means of curing and preventing Huntington's disease.

The disorder is now accepted as having a hereditary basis. The symptoms of this type of Chorea (a word taken from the Greek, meaning "dance") are forms of uncontrollable twisting, jerking and purposeless movements.

Unfortunately, symptoms do not become apparent until the patient is past 35 years of age. By this time, people with this genetic defect may have unknowingly passed on this hereditary disease to one or more children. It rarely strikes in childhood.

The wide range of symptoms and personality variations often make it difficult for the exact diagnosis of Huntington's disease to be established.

It is hoped that the newly created Commission will, through research, discover some bio-chemical or microscopic test that will establish the diagnosis early in life and prevent the personal and family catastrophe of this disease.

Woodrow Wilson Guthrie, well known as Woody Guthrie, balladeer, folk singer and poet, was afflicted with Huntington's disease. To Woody, and thousands of less prestigious but just as courageous sufferers of this neurological disease, we owe the support and encouragement necessary to eradicate it.

"We never accept, for our cards, the work of amateurs. They must be full-time trained professionals," says Dash. "This means that we have turned down some interesting work. Grandma Moses, for example. She tried to sell us paintings for Christmas cards, but we had to reject her. Excellent as her primitives are, we had to stick to our credo. And she was an amateur, not dependent for a living on her work."

The customers for artist-produced greeting cards are unique.

"Some of our clients don't change their greeting card selections. Year after year, they send out the same card. You don't change your paintings every Christmas, do you? Then why change your greetings? If there's a lovely card you like, you may as well stick with it."

Some artist contributors to Dash's group net as much as $20,000 a year on card reproductions of their paintings — and they still own the paintings. In fact, it is typical that once a painting has been reproduced on a card, the value of the original canvas doubles. This is, of course, a marvelous help for struggling artists."

Even nonstrugglers benefit, though they can be exasperating sometimes. "The famous ones — Andrew Wyeth, for example — never reply to our letters. We keep sending Wyeth checks and requests for more paintings we can reproduce. He cashes the checks, but forgets about the paintings until we really get after him."

Ah, but that's Christmas for you. Most people are busy spending money at Christmas. But others are busy making it . . .

Lucy The Goose Loves The River

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — Workers at the Republic Steel Co. blast furnace say they have proof that pollution doesn't necessarily deter wildlife.

Lucy, a mottled-brown goose, has been residing in a 500-foot pollution-warmed stretch in the Mahoning River since last spring. Even with the cold weather, there are no signs that Lucy is leaving.

Workers said the river at Lucy's home is heated to 50 degrees by water returned to the river after being used to cool steel furnace machinery. Charles A. Anderson, furnace superintendent, said this part of the river never freezes over, so she can stay there all year.

"Besides," he added, "where else could she get all the corn, apples and bread she wants? With our men and passing train crews feeding her, Lucy's found a good home."

The murder of J. F. Bollmeyer, editor of the Dayton Empire, in 1862, marked the beginning of a two-year period of rioting produced by political tension stemming from the Civil War.—AP

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Saturday, Dec. 4, the 339th day of 1976. There are 27 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1783, George Washington, quitting as Commander in Chief, had a farewell dinner with his officers at Fraunces Tavern in New York.

On this date —

In 1945, Congress approved U.S. participation in the United Nations.

In 1965, Communist terrorists in South Vietnam shot their way to the door of an American military hotel in Saigon before dawn and set off a bomb that killed eleven people, including two American servicemen.

In 1974, a Dutch charter aircraft with 191 passengers and crewmen crashed on an island in the Indian Ocean, and all aboard were killed.

Ten years ago: Communists in South Vietnam carried out repeated terrorist attacks on an airport near Saigon and on U.S. offices and living quarters in Saigon.

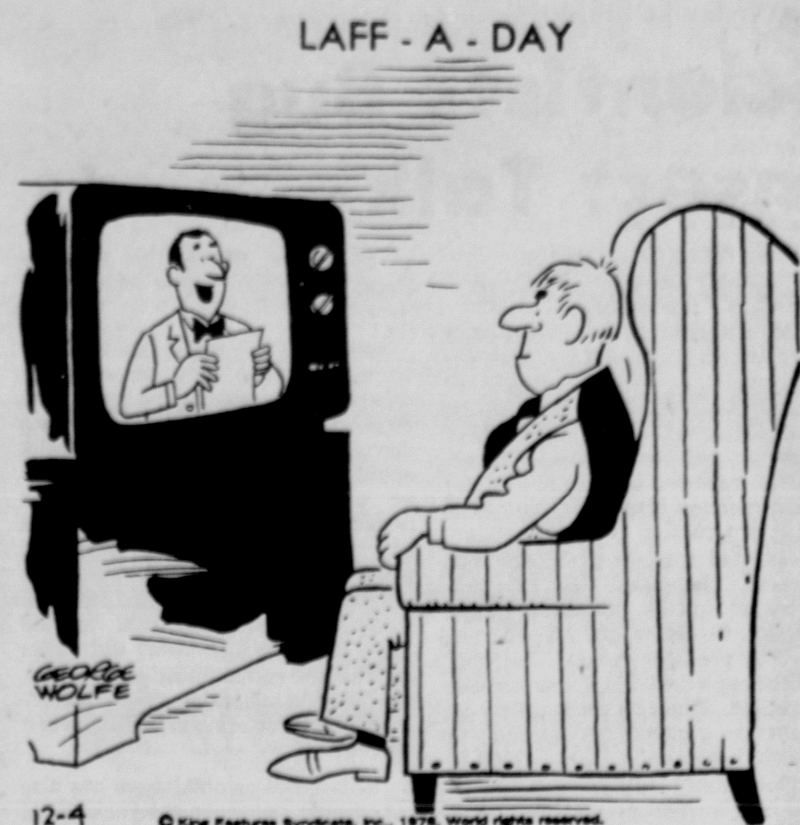

Five years ago: Indian troops, tanks and planes were striking into East Pakistan, and Indian planes hit key airfields in West Pakistan.

One year ago: President Ford and Chinese leaders ended meetings in Peking without achieving any significant change in U.S.-Chinese relations.

Today's birthdays: Former movie star Deanne Durbin is 54. Nobel Prize winning biologist Alfred Hershey is 58.

Thought for today: As our government deteriorates, our humor increases. — Will Rogers, American humorist, 1879-1935.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, Captain George Cook of the American armed ship Defense was back in Baltimore with two British ships captured as prizes and he requested rum and sugar from Maryland officials for his next voyage after Christmas.

"Skiing conditions on Mount Snowball are fair to good on the slopes and excellent in the bar!"

A 16-year-old Circleville boy, charged with violation of parole, was given 10 days of detention, suspended, his probation is continued, and he must complete 50 community work hours.

He is a member of St. Coleman's Catholic Church in Washington Court House.

Man Unhurt In Accident

Okey Clark, 22, Columbus, was unhurt when his car veered out of control on Route 56 at Blain Road and created a potentially dangerous situation.

Clark's car, traveling northwest on Route 56, went off the right side at the curve near the intersection of Blain Road. The vehicle destroyed two road signs and went through a small ditch before striking a large above-ground gas meter with two-inch gas line.

Impact knocked the meter box off at its base and sent natural gas gushing into the air.

After impact with the gas meter box, the car spun sideways and crashed into an electric pole. Impact caused tension on the upper lines, and broke a high voltage line, which fell to the ground about 100 feet south of the pole.

The car drove onto a lawn owned by Harold Rapp, 16060 Route 56 West, rolled over one time, and came to rest on its top in the garden.

Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Danny Dewey charged Clark with reckless operation after investigating the 12:15 a.m. Saturday accident.

Take Precautions When Mailing Film

Perhaps at no other time than Christmas is a camera so precious to a family in recording permanent memories of the occasion.

Certain precautions must be taken when sending film through the mail. To help prevent the needless accumulation of film cartridges and canisters at Dead Letter Offices, the following tips are suggested.

Film cartridges and canisters should be placed in sturdy envelopes to withstand handling while in the mail processing system. The envelope should be boldly marked "Hand Cancel" on both the front and back of the envelope.

The use of padded mailing envelopes or small cartons is recommended when a number of films are being sent to the same processor. The address side of the carton must measure at least 3 1/2 inches by 5 inches. It is essential that the name and address of the sender be included on the outside as well as inside the envelope or carton.

A pre-printed return address label or a strip of adhesive tape bearing the sender's name and address should be affixed directly on the film cartridge or canister.

Westfall Middle School Presents Christmas Program

Westfall Middle School will give its Christmas Program Monday, 7:30 p.m., in the high school auditorium. The sixth grade classes will start off the evening with "Christmas around the World," a play about Christmas customs.

Under the direction of Mrs. Pat Bethard, the Westfall Junior High Choir will sing Christmas selections such as "Do You Hear What I Hear?" and "Holly Jolly Christmas."

The sixth and seventh grade Beginning Bands will be combined to play "Jolly Old St. Nicholas," "Jingle Bells" and other Christmas tunes. The Eight Grade Band, directed by Miss Rita Ingman will finish the program with some familiar Christmas songs, two of which will be "Winter Wonderland" and Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer."

Chiaramonte, Dollison Bring Good Records

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Robert M. Chiaramonte made a name for himself as a personnel man during 10 years as superintendent of the Highway Patrol.

On Friday, Gov. James A. Rhodes named him to be director of the Department of Highway Safety, where personality conflicts caused problems for outgoing director Donald M. Cook.

Dean L. Dollison, 55, was well-known in southeastern Ohio but lesser known statewide when Rhodes appointed him registrar in the Bureau of Motor Vehicles to succeed Curtis Andrews. Both changes occurred simultaneously.

Chiaramonte was at the normal retirement age of 55 when he left the patrol April 5, 1975, after 33 years of service.

As patrol superintendent he became nationally recognized in the field of personnel administration and evaluation. He guided development of a new personnel evaluation system for the patrol, developed an applicant screening process to improve patrol applicant selection, and implemented a direct two-way communication system between patrolmen and the superintendent.

He established a Patrolman of the Year award to recognize an outstanding officer selected by his peers.

He created a statewide system of computers to allow law enforcement agencies to quickly exchange information.

He established a "Blue Max" award for patrolmen recovering a high number of stolen vehicles in a given time.

Dollison, a native of Logan, served eight years on the Ohio Racing Commission and was administrator for the Ohio Racing Study Committee when he was named an assistant director of the Department of Transportation on Feb. 1, 1975.

He served four terms as a member of the Logan City Council, two terms as its president and 23 years as director of the Hocking County Board of Elections.

He also served as president of the State Association of County Boards of Visitors, and was vice president of a printing company at Logan.

He established the school of printing for the Tri-County Vocational School in 1969.

Miss Johanna Linn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Linn, 2235 N. Court St., and Mr. Paul E. Brown Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Brown Sr., 116 E. Water St., were united in marriage November 6th in Community United Methodist Church.

The Rev. David Frazer officiated the double ring ceremony before the altar decorated with a miniature bouquet like that carried by the bride placed on an open Bible and two arrangements of dried pink and white flowers in fireside baskets. Flanking the altar table were seven branch candelabra and white bows centered with pink and wine strawflowers marked the pews.

Mr. Ellery Elick, organist and vocalist, presented a program of nuptial selections preceding the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and mother. She was attired in a floor length gown of white pianissimo featuring an empire waist, scoop neckline with a lace insert forming a high collar, and long sleeves. The gown was covered with a wide lace edged chapel length hooded cape for a headpiece and veil. The bride carried an arm bouquet featuring a red, white and pink rose, each rose was of special significance to the bride. Her only jewelry was a ruby ring given to her by her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Eva Linn, who is deceased.

Miss Tammie Sabine was maid of honor in a floor length gown of vibrant wine pianissimo styled like that of the bride. The gown was topped with a waist length cape of pastel print chiffon. She wore a wine velvet choker and carried a single pink long stemmed rose. Bridesmaid, Miss Arlene Carpenter, was gowned identically to the honor attendant and also carried a pink rose.

Mr. Rick Blue served as best man.

Unwed Father Refuses To Help

DEAR ABBY: The son of a wealthy professional man has gotten a girl pregnant. That may not be unusual, but the boy's father bought him a new car with the understanding that the boy not marry the girl. This I consider most unusual.

The girl is forced to go on welfare. The cost of pre-natal care and delivery, plus the cost of raising the child will be at the taxpayers' expense.

As a taxpayer I resent the idea of supporting the grandchild of a wealthy man. However, what do you advise in such a situation? The district attorney seems to feel that welfare is the answer.

DEE DEE ESS

DEAR DEE: Pity a male who is old enough to become a father isn't man enough to handle his own problems. The wealthy professional man who would bribe his son to forestall marriage, but then offer no financial help to the girl and-or the child is as morally guilty as the son for evading any responsibility for the consequences of his actions.

To fill the gap created by such moral cop-outs, the U.S. government has created Aid to Dependent Children. And for the sake of the innocent children, it's a good thing it did.

DEAR ABBY: We are older people who have just bought a light-colored carpet. We cannot afford to replace it, so we have bought 10 pairs of slippers for guests to put on before coming into the house.

The problem: We have a dear friend (he's also a relative) who refuses to remove his shoes and use the slippers we have provided for our guests.

His wife still comes, using the slippers, but he refuses to come if he has to wear the slippers.

Please advise us.

CONFIDENTIAL TO BIBLE STUDENT IN ASHVILLE, N.C.: Psychiatry is NOT an atheistic concept. The greatest textbook on human behavior ever written is the Bible in which the principle of psychoanalysis was set fourth 3,000 years ago.

"And ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free." (New Testament, John VIII; 32)

Not until one knows "the truth" about himself, complete with all the grim hostilities, insecurities and unresolved conflicts, is he truly "free."

It is the role of the psychiatrist to remove the camouflage, self-deception and rationalizations, and to bring the unconscious conflicts into the conscious mind where reason can deal with them. Once reason is gained, the cure begins, because the truth does make one free.

Linn-Brown Wedding Vows Exchanged In Community United Methodist Church

Miss Johanna Linn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Linn, 2235 N. Court St., and Mr. Paul E. Brown Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Brown Sr., 116 E. Water St., were united in marriage November 6th in Community United Methodist Church.

The Rev. David Frazer officiated the double ring ceremony before the altar decorated with a miniature bouquet like that carried by the bride placed on an open Bible and two arrangements of dried pink and white flowers in fireside baskets. Flanking the altar table were seven branch candelabra and white bows centered with pink and wine strawflowers marked the pews.

Mr. Ellery Elick, organist and vocalist, presented a program of nuptial selections preceding the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and mother. She was attired in a floor length gown of white pianissimo featuring an empire waist, scoop neckline with a lace insert forming a high collar, and long sleeves. The gown was covered with a wide lace edged chapel length hooded cape for a headpiece and veil. The bride carried an arm bouquet featuring a red, white and pink rose, each rose was of special significance to the bride. Her only jewelry was a ruby ring given to her by her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Eva Linn, who is deceased.

Miss Tammie Sabine was maid of honor in a floor length gown of vibrant wine pianissimo styled like that of the bride. The gown was topped with a waist length cape of pastel print chiffon. She wore a wine velvet choker and carried a single pink long stemmed rose. Bridesmaid, Miss Arlene Carpenter, was gowned identically to the honor attendant and also carried a pink rose.

Mr. Rick Blue served as best man.

Ushers were Mr. Douglas Brown, brother of the bridegroom, Mr. Jeff Linn and Mr. Scott Linn, brothers of the bride, and Mr. David Shirey.

The bride's mother selected for her daughter's wedding a full length gown of frosty green with matching accessories and a wrist corsage of white cymbidium orchids.

Santa and the Giant Fighter

By Lucrece Beale

Synopsis: Billy the Giant Fighter travels to Santa Land to slay the wicked giant who has captured the Fairy Queen and plans to capture Santa Claus.

CHAPTER FOUR PATRICK TWEED-LEKNEES

Billy the Giant Fighter burst through the door of Santa's house. He didn't even knock.

"Good gracious!" cried Santa. He had been pacing up and down in front of his fireplace. He stared at Billy in astonishment. "Who are you?"

"I'm ready to fight!" announced Billy loudly. He swung his sword back and forth a few times but he felt a little silly because there didn't seem to be any giants around.

"Throw him out!" shouted a furious voice from the corner. "Look what he's done to my papers!" A short bowlegged dwarf was jumping up and down and pointing angrily to a sea of papers which the breeze from the open door had flung all over the room.

"I—I'm sorry," stammered Billy putting his sword back in his belt. "I thought—I thought—"

"You didn't think at all!" bellowed the dwarf. "Let me tell you things are bad enough without—"

"Quiet, Tweedleknies!" Santa turned to the boy and said gently. "You must not mind Patrick Tweedleknies. He is old and grumpy and he has much on his mind. A wicked giant named Goko has captured the Fairy Queen. He has taken the moon from the sky and promises to take me, too, when I ride on Christmas Eve. Then he will marry the Queen, gain possession of all her magic, and he himself will rule the world.

"Tweedleknies has been playing with all the letters of the alphabet to discover the magic words that will free the moon. But it's all useless, I'm afraid, because the Queen has said that only a real live boy who believes in giants can save us all."

"Billy, you are our one chance!" said Santa.

"I'm the boy!" cried Billy eagerly. "I'm Billy the Giant Fighter. An elfite sent me here."

"Giant fighter!" sneered Patrick Tweedleknies. "You look like a goldfish fighter. How many giants have you fought?"

"Not many. Not any, really, I guess. But I can! I know I can!"

Santa took the boy's hands in his. "Do you truly believe in giants?"

"Oh, yes!"

"Thank goodness!" cried Santa smiling. For a minute he looked cheery and pink the way Billy had always imagined he would look. Then he turned sad again and said, "Billy, you're the one chance we have to save the Fairy Queen and Santa Land. But Goko is strong and his power is great and you must be very, very brave."

Billy nodded. He was so scared he couldn't speak. He put his hand on the wooden sword in his belt. It gave him courage. He found his voice and said, "This is my sword. I made it myself. I expect it doesn't look like much to you but it is better than you might think."

Santa studied the sword and nodded solemnly. "The blade is straight and the point is good." He put his arm around Billy and drew him nearer to the fire because the boy was shivering so. Then he told Billy that more than a sword was needed to destroy the giant.

"You must have some magic as strong as Goko's or he will destroy you before you have a chance to strike him with your sword."

"But where will I get such magic?" asked Billy.

"From the Harp Witch. She is Goko's enemy. We will visit her and she will tell us what you must do."

Billy said he was ready to go but Santa said they could not go until Patrick Tweedleknies had found the magic words to free the moon.

"For, you see," said Santa. "The giant can be destroyed only while the moon is in the sky. That is why Goko took it out of the sky and that is why we must put it back."

Santa and the Giant Fighter

By Lucrece Beale

Synopsis: Billy the Giant Fighter travels to Santa Land to slay the wicked giant who has captured the Fairy Queen and plans to capture Santa Claus.

CHAPTER FOUR PATRICK TWEED- LEKNEES

Billy the Giant Fighter burst through the door of Santa's house. He didn't even knock.

"Good gracious!" cried Santa. He had been pacing up and down in front of his fireplace. He stared at Billy in astonishment. "Who are you?"

"I'm ready to fight!" announced Billy loudly. He swung his sword back and forth a few times but he felt a little silly because there didn't seem to be any giants around.

"Throw him out!" shouted a furious voice from the corner. "Look what he's done to my papers!" A short bowlegged dwarf was jumping up and down and pointing angrily to a sea of papers which the breeze from the open door had flung all over the room.

"I—I'm sorry," stammered Billy putting his sword back in his belt. "I thought—I thought—"

"You didn't think at all!" bellowed the dwarf. "Let me tell you things are bad enough without—"

"Quiet, Tweedleknies!" Santa turned to the boy and said gently. "You must not mind Patrick Tweedleknies. He is old and grumpy and he has much on his mind. A wicked giant named Goko has captured the Fairy Queen. He has taken the moon from the sky and promises to take me, too, when I ride on Christmas Eve. Then he will marry the Queen, gain possession of all her magic, and he himself will rule the world.

"Tweedleknies has been playing with all the letters of the alphabet to discover the magic words that will free the moon. But it's all useless, I'm afraid, because the Queen has said that only a real live boy who believes in giants can save us all."

"Billy, you are our one chance!" said Santa.

"I'm the boy!" cried Billy eagerly. "I'm Billy the Giant Fighter. An elfie sent me here."

"Giant fighter!" sneered Patrick Tweedleknies. "You look like a goldfish fighter. How many giants have you fought?"

"Not many. Not any, really, I guess. But I can! I know I can!"

Santa took the boy's hands in his. "Do you truly believe in giants?"

"Oh, yes!"

"Thank goodness!" cried Santa smiling. For a minute he looked cheery and pink the way Billy had always imagined he would look. Then he turned sad again and said, "Billy, you're the one chance we have to save the Fairy Queen and Santa Land. But Goko is strong and his power is great and you must be very, very brave."

Billy nodded. He was so scared he couldn't speak. He put his hand on the wooden sword in his belt. It gave him courage. He found his voice and said, "This is my sword. I made it myself. I expect it doesn't look like much to you but it is better than you

Santa studied the sword and nodded solemnly. "The blade is straight and the point is good." He put his arm around Billy and drew him nearer to the fire because the boy was shivering so. Then he told Billy that more than a sword was needed to destroy the giant.

"You must have some magic as strong as Goko's or he will destroy you before you have a chance to strike him with your sword."

"But where will I get such magic?" asked Billy.

"From the Harp Witch. She is Goko's enemy. We will visit her and she will tell us what you must do."

Billy said he was ready to go but Santa said they could not go until Patrick Tweedleknies had found the magic words to free the moon.

"For, you see," said Santa. "The giant can be destroyed only while the moon is in the sky. That is why Goko took it out of the sky and that is why we must put it back."

County Board Reappoints Eastland Vocational Rep

The Pickaway County Board of Education at its regular monthly meeting reappointed Everett Beers, a member of the county board of education, to serve on the Eastland Joint Vocational School Board, representing the county board and the Teays Valley Local School District. Beers currently serves on the board and his term expires Dec. 31, 1976.

The board passed a resolution to approve a contractual agreement between the local school districts in Pickaway County and the Fairfield County Board of Education to provide supervisory services for speech and hearing therapists.

Superintendent Martin reported to the board that a mini-project submitted by the county board to the Central Ohio Special education Regional Resource Center in the amount of $500 to purchase materials for teacher-made projects had been approved. A workshop will be set up in the near future for teachers of special education to complete projects of their own choosing. Materials made will be taken by the teachers for classroom use.

Mrs. Karen Sabine, clerk-treasurer, was re-employed for a four-year period beginning Jan. 1, 1977.

Approval was given for the county superintendent to attend a two-day meeting Dec. 13-14 called by the Ohio County Superintendents' Association to formulate legislative proposals in behalf of county offices of education and local school districts to be submitted to the Legislature when it convenes in January.

The county superintendent discussed the implications of Public Law 94142 for future funding for special education as well as the legislative outlook for 1977 as it pertains to the funding and operation of local schools.

The board set Jan. 6 for its organizational meeting for 1977. They will meet at 1 p.m. in the county superintendent's office.

Jackson Class Developes Reading Games

On Nov. 17, Jackson's Title I Reading Program held a "Make it - Take it" workshop for the parents. The purpose was to make reading games. These games could then be taken home by the parents to play with their children.

Parents in attendance were: Mrs. Donohew, Mrs. Casto, Mrs. Dever, Mrs. Stonerock, Mrs. Hoagland, Mrs. Cottrill, Mrs. Puffinbarger, Mrs. List, Mrs. Dalton and Mrs. Weese.

Tigers Stop McClain, 69-58

Brent "The Might" Wright came through with 30 points and hauled down 18 rebounds to pace the Circleville Tigers to a 69-58 win over Greenfield Friday night in the Red and Black's South Central Ohio League opener at Mill St. gym.

Circleville's 6-foot-4½ center put on a tough performance as he hit 13 of 19 from the floor and converted four of six from the charity stripe and turned in a good defensive effort.

But, it was also the surprising poise of coach Jim Bailey's inexperienced Roundtowners that played a big factor. Several times in the contest it appeared that McClain was ready to take command but the Red and Black refused to yield and held their ground.

The game was plagued by a continuous blast of whistles which saw Circleville lose Wright and Toren Bensonhaver via the foul route in the final quarter while Greenfield made room on the bench for Chuck Cole, Eric Dunson and Mark Current late in the game.

Circleville was called on fouls 26 times while Greenfield had the whistle "tooted at them" 29 times for a total of 55 fouls called.

In addition to Wright's power packed performance, Frank Merrill netted 12 points, Bensonhaver tallied 11, Tom Taylor hit seven, Rusty Holbrook hooped six, Eric Pontious added two and Roy Huffer had one.

Cole led Greenfield with 19 markers, Rob McCray swished 11, Dunson and Bill Legge each came up with 10, Current had four while Jim Everhart and Kevin McNeil both added two.

Circleville was 22 of 51 from the floor for 51 per cent and converted 25 of 36 at the charity stipe for 70 per cent.

McClain shot 16 of 49 from the hardwood for 33 per cent and connected on 26 of 32 from the free throw line for 81 per cent.

The Red and Black cagers won the battle of the boards, 35 to 28, with Wright hauling in 18 missed shots while Dunson pulled down nine to pace Greenfield.

In the turnover department, it was Circleville with 18 while McClain misplayed the ball 21 times.

Greenfield only held the lead once in the game and that was a 4-2 edge at the 6:08 mark of the first canto. But a drive by Merrill and a shot from under by Wright put the Tigers on top to stay 6-4, although the McClain boys stayed in the ball game most of the way.

With Wright and Taylor lighting the scoreboard the Roundtowners built up a 15-9 lead at the end of the first quarter.

Merrill netted two foul shots and Wright netted four buckets to move Circleville to a 25-16 edge with 3:33 left in the half. But, Greenfield battled back with nine straight markers to knot the count at 25-25 at halftime.

Both Wright and Merrill ran into foul trouble in the third period and spent time on the bench but the Roundtowners still hung in and had a 42-37 edge at the third period buzzer.

The Red and Black cagers maintained their edge in the final period and although Greenfield pulled within five points with 1:55 to play, the Tigers answered the challenge with a burst of their own and handed McClain its first setback of the season.

Circleville is now 2-0 for the season, 1-0 in league play, and will host Bloom-Carroll Tuesday at Mill St. gym.

Hamilton Rangers Outgun Vikings

DRIVING — Teays Valley's Terry Trego (13) goes to the hoop in Friday night's action at Hamilton Twp. The Rangers Steve Dawson (42) and another defender attempt to stop Trego. The Vikings fell to a strong Hamilton team 95-66.

The Hamilton Twp. Rangers showed Friday night that they are a team that will have to be reckoned with before this season is over, as they staged a shootout against the Teays Valley Vikings in the Ranger's gym, winning, 95-66.

At the start of the game the Vikes pulled out in front and it looked as if they might stay there. The Norsemen were hot and the Rangers couldn't find the range. As the clock ticked off the final seconds of the first quarter though, the Hamilton five began to run in shots from all angles, and as the buzzer signaled the end of the first stanza, the score was knotted at 16-16.

That was where the Rangers took over and controlled the ball game. By the intermission, they had built a nine point lead over the Vikings. The third quarter was the difference in the ball game, as the Rangers widened the gap to the tune of 71-50.

Tom Motika was the big gun for the evening. He made the rim glow with his 32 points, 26 of which came from the field. Zack Scott chipped in with a significant 22 tallies, and Jeff Parent helped the winning cause with 20 markers to complete the double figure scoring for the Rangers.

For the Vikes, Terry Trego poured in 19 points, and Tim Tosca fired home 15. The remaining double-figure man for Teays Valley was Jeff Voss with 11. Rick Queen added six points, Charles Morrison had five, Duane Keller checked in with four, and Mike Johnsen, Mike Fisher, and Ron Little all added two apiece.

The real difference in the game may have been in the rebounding department where Teays Valley managed 28 compared with Hamilton Twp.'s 39. The Rangers were adept in both field goals and foul shots, they hit 55 per cent from the floor and 65 per cent from the charity stipe. The Vikings hit at a 42 per cent rate from the floor and 58 per cent from the foul line.

The Viking reserves took a close victory in the preliminary game, 38-37.

The Vikings will be out for their first taste of victory Tuesday night when they host the Grandview Bobcats for an 8 p.m. varsity match-up.

Balanced Scoring Paces LE To 79-58 Mid State Win

With four players scoring in double figures and nine others contributing point support Logan Elm opened the Mid State League basketball campaign Friday defeating visiting Millersport, 79-58.

Senior center Chuck Cave paced the Braves to the victory scoring 19 points and spearing eight rebounds. Sophomore Terry Wright continued to show improvement as he tallied 16 markers and also grabbed eight rebounds.

Junior guard Jeff Collins chipped in 13 points and senior guard Mark Skinner tallied 11. Randy Pontius, the other starter for LE, tallied five. Also scoring for the Braves were Tony Crist and Todd Young with three each, John Mettler and Eric Maxson and John Scanlan with two each, Mike Patrick, Doug Woods and Mark Martin each with one.

The Braves were outrebounded by the taller Millersport quintet, 38-29, but out shot them from both the field and the foul line. LE made 30 of 60 shots from the field, a 50 per cent average, and 19 of 36 at the charity stipe, a 52.7 per cent average.

Millersport made 22 of 67 from the floor, a 33 per cent average, and 11 of 19 at the foul line, a 58 per cent average.

Bill Caldwell was the leading scorer for the Lakers with a 20 point effort while Chad Dupler scored 10.

Both teams opened the game slowly and 13 shots were taken and nearly three minutes passed before Cave lit up the score board with a bucket from the corner. The Braves were never behind.

By the end of the first period they held a 17-6 edge. When the teams headed for the locker room at half-time, LE was ahead, 33-21.

The Lakers rallied briefly in the third period and narrowed the margin to six points, 41-35, with a little over three minutes to go in the quarter.

But the Braves came back and scored 14 unanswered points over the next four minutes of the game and were never threatened in the closing period. The score going into the final eight minutes was 50-35.

"We weren't executing well the first half and just weren't patient enough with our offense," LE Coach Butch Kobel said after the game. "But we played a lot better the second half.

"We were concerned about how we could handle their combination defenses but we haven't worked too much against the zone this week," Kobel said. The Lakers used a 2-1-2 zone exclusively the first half and in the second half went with the combinations pressure defenses.

Kobel credited Cave as the key to the win with his second half effort. The LE center has been under the weather and has missed some practice this week. The coach was also pleased with the performance of guards Collins and Skinner and with the improvement shown by Wright.

The Logan Elm reserves made it a perfect night for the home crowd, winning 46-26. Tom Congrove tallied 17, Mark Vanover 14, Dan Hill 11 and Brian Hannigan and Steve Sheets two each.

The varsity now has a 2-1 record and travels to Bloom Carroll next Friday for another Mid State contest.

CHS Reserves Roll Over Greenfield

After a fairly tight first half, the Circleville reserves turned on the juice and broke the game open in the third quarter as they rolled to a 46-29 victory over Greenfield Friday night at the Mill St. gym.

Coach Dennis Stewart's Red and Black cagers just couldn't seem to get things going in the first period and settled for a 6-6 count at the buzzer.

But, the Roundtowners began to increase the pace and find the range in the second canto and built a halftime lead of 26-17.

They really wrapped things up in the third stanza when they held McClain to a pair of markers and increased the gap to 34-19 and then rode home in the final quarter for a 17 point victory.

Peter Harrison led Circleville with 14 points, Donald Hill netted seven, Brian Sealock and Carey Dean both hooped six, Richard Elsea hit five, Monte Shaffer added four while Richard Pfleeger and Glenn Yaple both had two.

Steve Cole was the Greenfield leader with 10 points, John Cannon added six, Phil Smith tallied five, Randy Seldon netted four, Jim Arnott hit three and Allan Storer added one.

Circleville is now 2-0, 1-0 in the league and will be home to Bloom-Carroll Tuesday at Mill St. gym.

Cowboys, Eagles In Collision

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer
Jethro Pugh and Lee Roy Jordan have seen it all.

Pugh was the player Jerry Kramer had to move in order for Bart Starr to score the winning touchdown in the famous Green Bay-Dallas Ice Bowl game that decided the National Football League's 1967 championship.

Jordan was backing up the line on that famous play.

Together they helped anchor Dallas' Doomsday Defense that led the Cowboys to the 1971 Super Bowl championship.

And they provided some of the veteran leadership that helped the rookie-laden Cowboys win the NFC championship last season.

So when Pugh and Jordan talk about Dallas defense after a dozen seasons together in the NFL, you listen.

Ask them about the current Dallas defense and they pull no punches.

"We are playing better as a unit than any of our teams in the past," said Pugh.

That defense is a major reason that the Cowboys are just one victory away from wrapping up the NFC East championship. They will go for the clincher Sunday against the Philadelphia Eagles.

In Sunday's other games, Buffalo plays at Miami, Houston is at Cleveland, Kansas City meets the Broncos at Denver, Tampa Bay visits Pittsburgh, Chicago plays at Seattle, Detroit visits the New York Giants, Green Bay is at Minnesota, New Orleans plays at New England, San Francisco is at San Diego and Washington plays the Jets at New York.

In Monday night's game, Cincinnati plays at Oakland.

The NFL weekend began today with Baltimore at St. Louis and Atlanta at Los Angeles.

For the season, Dallas has allowed only 160 points, and with just two games to go, the Cowboys stand a good chance of setting a club record for the fewest points allowed.

The Steelers have won seven consecutive games since a dreadful 1-4 start. The defense has been a vital factor in the Steelers' turnaround and leads the American Football Conference.

The Steelers also lead the AFC in scoring differential with a margin of 141 points between the 279 they have scored and the 138 they have allowed.

The Steelers have permitted fewer points than any team in the league, but Pittsburgh still needs help to make it into the playoffs. The Steelers trail the Bengals by one game, and unless the Bengals lose one of their two remaining games, Pittsburgh will not be able to catch them.

The help could come Monday night if Oakland, which already has clinched the AFC West, beats Cincinnati. The Raiders own the NFL's best record at 11-1 and another victory would clinch the host team role in the playoffs which begin Dec. 18.

The Montreal Expos won fewer games than any of the 24 major league teams in 1976.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

What kind of a day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth Sign.

FOR SUNDAY
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): A splendid period for meeting up with your most interesting, energetic companions. They'll not only give you some good ideas, but a lift in morale as well.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Stellar influences somewhat restrictive. Avoid a tendency to vacillate, to give up on plans or projects before they have been given a fair trial.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Your Mercury, in excellent position, encourages written matters, communications generally. Give a good account of yourself.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Friends may want you to go on an unexpected outing. Go along with the idea. You'll have a good time.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Care advised in domestic spending. A credit arrangement could turn out to be very expensive in the long run.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): You may need a mental uplift now. Don't brood—determine to engage only in the activities which stimulate you most—and stick to your resolution.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): You have better planetary influences than most, but you could still miss out on opportunity — if careless or indifferent. Don't let this happen!

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): A chance now to see things in quiet perspective. Stand back to review activities — but only those concerned with the present. Forget the past.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): If it will help to clear up a situation in sensible fashion, don't turn down any feasible suggestion. But discriminate between the astute and the rash.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Romance is in your picture now. You'll get unmistakable hints that someone you admire considers you most attractive. Follow up!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Fear of change may beset you at times, but success often calls for finding one's way through mazes, odd nooks, with incomprehensible persons. You may have to do this now.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): What pleases one may not please another. You may have to juggle a bit to avoid undesirable contention and hassling. But, in your quiet way, you can manage it.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a warm and outgoing personality, remarkable business acumen and a subtle but brilliant wit. You have a fine mind and could succeed in almost any field of your choosing, but your greatest successes would probably be achieved in the business and financial world. You may, however, be more inclined to the law, statesmanship, literature or the theater and, should you choose one of these as a career, you can be assured not only of your professional success, but material success as well, for, no matter how engrossed you become in your chosen field, your good business head never leaves you. Traits to curb: hypersensitivity and undue secretiveness. Birthdate of Martin Van Buren, 8th Pres., U.S.A.; Walt Disney, film writer, producer; Otto Preminger, film producer, director.

Soviet Doctors
NEW YORK (AP) — Most doctors in the Soviet Union earn low pay and have little prestige, according to Medical World News.

The publication says about 70 per cent of the doctors who care for the health needs of the average Soviet citizen are women who earn about $150 a month.

"Skilled factory workers earn more money, are more likely to see their pictures on the front pages of Pravda and are more likely to find a niche in the Communist party, which brings perquisites not enjoyed by the non-party person," adds the magazine.

The Girl Guide movement began in England in 1909.

Plane Bombing Figure Convicted

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ernest A. Skidmore dabbled briefly at his red-dyed eyes but otherwise showed little emotion Friday after a federal court jury convicted him of plotting to blow up an Allegheny Airlines plane.

The U.S. District Court panel deliberated a total of 5½ hours before finding Skidmore guilty on both counts of an indictment charging him with trying to send the plane plunging into Lake Erie to collect $100,000 in insurance.

Judge Robert M. Duncan deferred sentencing pending a probable appeal. The maximum penalty would be 25 years imprisonment and a $20,000 fine. Skidmore, 37, of South Point, Ohio, was accused of conspiring to stow two suitcase bombs in the cargo hold of Allegheny Flight 456 on Nov. 4, 1975.

But the plane with 40 passengers and crewmen aboard landed unscathed at the Buffalo airport and the untriggered bombs, made of black powder, gasoline and rifle cartridges, were not discovered until two days after during a routine check of unclaimed baggage.

Also charged is Skidmore's half brother, Hubert P. Irwin, 51, of Toronto, Ontario, on whom the insurance policy was written. The government contended Irwin had a ticket on the flight and checked through the boarding procedure but never actually boarded the plane.

Bomb experts testified during the trial that the alarm clock timing mechanisms failed on the bombs. The prosecution suggested that rough handling of the baggage fouled the mechanisms.

After discovery, one of the bombs was dismantled and the other was intentionally exploded on a testing range near Buffalo.

Skidmore, who was living with his new wife at her home in South Point when he was arrested last September, was characterized by Assistant U.S. Atty. Daniel Brown as a builder of fast food restaurants whose business was failing.

Brown depicted Irwin as a heavy drinking ne'er-do-well.

Skidmore testified he was reunited

Rhodes Raps Commutations

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes says the gubernatorial power to commute death sentences is "outdated and antiquated."

"Why should I stand against the courts?" the governor said in an interview with the Akron Beacon Journal Thursday. "I have no business in relieving."

Rhodes added it wasn't sensible to make the governor "a court of last resort," since his office had neither the time nor the resources to make a full study of each case.

"We could study it and brief it and still not understand what happened locally," said Rhodes, who has the power to pardon crimes, and commute and pardon sentences.

Robert L. Ratchford, Rhodes' aide who handles executive clemency appeals, said the governor's policy has been to follow recommendations of the adult parole board.

Since Nov. 24, when the Ohio Supreme Court ruled the state's death penalty was constitutional, the court has set electrocution dates for four men. All four are being appealed.

There are 62 persons on death row in Ohio, Ratchford said. The last person in Ohio to die in the electric chair was Donald L. Reinbolt on March 1, 1963.

Radio Tumbles; Bather Killed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Sixteen-year-old Corvair Hanning died when she was apparently electrocuted after a radio plugged into a socket fell into the water-filled bathtub she was in on Thursday, authorities said.

Death Valley Skating Exhausting

DEATH VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — Linda Reingold, one of three persons who skated 125 miles through Death Valley, says she still loves skating but will stick to roller rinks until her bruises and blisters vanish.

Miss Reingold completed the trip Thursday, keeping her promise to skate across the valley if Jimmy Carter was elected president. She made the vow while working as a Carter canvasser on roller skates in Southern California.

"I think I'll have a nice cold drink, a nice hot bath and then maybe go out and do some partying," she said after finishing.

She complained of an assortment of bruises, blisters and sore muscles but added, "It's a good feeling to set a goal and do it."

"But I don't plan on any other skating exhibitions right now. I'll keep on skating of course. I'd love to go to a roller rink."

Miss Reingold, 26, was joined by her mother, Dawn, 49, also on skates, for the final 25-mile run into Shoshone on the southeast edge of this harsh desert region.

Two other persons skated the full distance with Miss Reingold — Chris Harris, 37, and Gary Hudson, 23.

But another skater, photographer Charles Adams, 34, had to quit early Thursday after tripping and spraining his right ankle. Adams was taking pictures when he slipped into a roadside ravine.

Police Probe Two Thefts

Circleville Police investigated two theft complaints Friday. The first came when Dorothy Shoemaker, 421 S. Court St., told police that she and her husband returned to their residence at 10:15 p.m. to discover their color television set missing. Also taken in the burglary was a Remington .22 caliber rifle.

According to Ptl. Howard Fletcher's report, the thieves gained entry to the residence by smashing a plywood cover on a basement window and crawling through the window space.

At 10:39 p.m. last night, Everett D. Hodgkinson, of Columbus told city police that while he was working as a referee at the Circleville-Greenfield basketball game, someone entered the locker room used by the officials and took his wallet.

According to the report, the wallet contained credit cards, and cash and checks amounting to $91.

Alarm Stops Theft Try

An unsuccessful attempt to break into the Ashville Hardware, 286 Long St., Ashville, was apparently thwarted by a burglar alarm, according to Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Jim Deal.

Deputy Deal found that a 10-inch by 13-inch window in the front door had been broken by the would-be intruders, who apparently unscrewed an overhead light to hide their actions. Damage to the glass was estimated at $5.

Worthy Spurlock, 40 Glenn Ave., Ashville, told deputies that thieves took two kerosene blower space heaters from a house under construction on the Ashville-Fairfield Road.

The space heaters are valued at $650. The Scioto Twp. Fire Department extinguished a minor barn fire 8:34 a.m. Friday at the home of George Erler, 9444 Rush Road.

Loose straw and empty feed bags apparently ignited in the barn, which is used by Erler as a garage. Owner of the property is William Butler, Obetz.

Police Check Accidents

Circleville Police investigated two injury accidents Friday.

The first accident occurred at 9:52 a.m. Friday on Lancaster Pike at the Lancaster Pike Shopping Center.

According to Ptl. K. C. Graul's report, a car driven by Flora L. Ewing, 55, Stoutsville, was eastbound on Lancaster Pike and was stopped to make a left turn into the parking lot at the shopping center. While she was waiting for the traffic to pass, her car was struck in the rear by a grain truck driven by Clarence Miller, 52, of Bremen, Ohio.

Ms. Ewing received injuries in the crash. She was taken to the Berger Hospital Emergency Room by the Circleville Emergency Medical Team. Ptl. Graul cited Miller for failure to maintain assured clear distance ahead.

The second injury accident came at 11:45 p.m. Friday night at the intersection of N. Pickaway and E. High Sts.

The report is incomplete at this time, but the accident involved cars driven by Robert H. McCoy, 47, 382 Meadow Lane, and Charlene Catlett, 42, 205 Marshall Rd.

Plane Bombing Figure Convicted

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ernest A. Skidmore dabbled briefly at his red-nosed eyes but otherwise showed little emotion Friday after a federal court jury convicted him of plotting to blow up an Allegheny Airlines plane.

The U.S. District Court panel deliberated a total of 5½ hours before finding Skidmore guilty on both counts of an indictment charging him with trying to send the plane plunging into Lake Erie to collect $100,000 in insurance.

Judge Robert M. Duncan deferred sentencing pending a probable appeal. The maximum penalty would be 25 years imprisonment and a $20,000 fine.

Skidmore, 37, of South Point, Ohio, was accused of conspiring to stow two suitcase bombs in the cargo hold of Allegheny Flight 456 on Nov. 4, 1975.

But the plane with 40 passengers and crewmen aboard landed unscathed at the Buffalo airport and the untriggered bombs, made of black powder, gasoline and rifle cartridges, were not discovered until two days after during a routine check of unclaimed baggage.

Also charged is Skidmore's half brother, Hubert P. Irwin, 51, of Toronto, Ontario, on whom the insurance policy was written. The government contended Irwin had a ticket on the flight and checked through the boarding procedure but never actually boarded the plane.

Bomb experts testified during the trial that the alarm clock timing mechanisms failed on the bombs. The prosecution suggested that rough handling of the baggage fouled the mechanisms.

After discovery, one of the bombs was dismantled and the other was intentionally exploded on a testing range near Buffalo.

Skidmore, who was living with his new wife at her home in South Point when he was arrested last September, was characterized by Assistant U.S. Atty. Daniel Brown as a builder of fast food restaurants whose business was failing.

Brown depicted Irwin as a heavy drinking ne'er-do-well.

Skidmore testified he was reunited with Irwin in Canada in February 1975 after a four-year separation. He said he was appalled to find his brother was a virtual derelict.

Some months later, Skidmore testified, he brought Irwin to the United States. They moved into the home of the future Mrs. Skidmore in South Point.

Brown argued that Skidmore and Irwin had toured the country, gathering the ingredients for the time bombs and purchasing black powder in small quantities to escape notice.

Two government witnesses identified Skidmore as being at a gun club which sold black powder, near Detroit, in early autumn 1975.

Witnesses traced the two pieces of luggage which were rigged with the bombs to a store near South Point, but the prosecution was unable to provide an eyewitness identification of Skidmore as the buyer.

Following the pair's secret indictments and arrests on the bomb plot charges, Irwin pleaded guilty to charges of illegal entry into the United States and was sentenced Sept. 24 to a term of 18 months in a federal penitentiary.

Irwin is expected to be tried on the bomb plot charges in January.
